CAPACIT'E

"Capacit'e has established itself as one of India's leading construction companies in the super high-rise and high-rise residential segment, which continues to be a strong contributor to our growth. Over the years, we have also successfully executed a diverse range of projects, including hospitals, integrated townships, and design-and- build developments."

CONSTRUCTION MIRROR

Q. India's construction sector is entering a phase where execution capability is becoming as important as order acquisition. How is Capacit'e strengthening its operational backbone to handle larger and more complex project portfolios without compromising on quality, safety, and delivery timelines?

At Capacit'e, we have always believed that execution is far more challenging than order acquisition. Winning a project is only the beginning; delivering it efficiently, safely, and within committed timelines is what truly creates value for clients and stakeholders.

As project sizes and complexities continue to increase, we are consistently strengthening our operational capabilities through investments in skilled manpower, advanced construction equipment, and project-specific engineering expertise. A significant emphasis is placed on continuous training and capability development to prepare our teams for the demands of larger and challenging projects.

Project planning remains at the heart of our execution strategy. We continuously refine our systems and processes to improve productivity, enhance coordination, and ensure timely decision-making. Equally important is our commitment to maintaining an agile organizational structure, which enables faster responses, effective problem-solving, and seamless execution across multiple project locations.

Our focus on quality, safety, and timely delivery remains uncompromised, regardless of the scale or complexity of the projects we undertake.

Q. Capacit'e has outlined a Vision 2028 roadmap. Could you share the strategic priorities that will define the company's next chapter, and how you envision Capacit'e's position evolving within India's construction ecosystem over the next few years?

Vision 2028 is centered around strengthening operational excellence, improving productivity, and building a future-ready organization capable of delivering increasingly complex projects at scale.

Our strategic priorities include enhancing the efficiency of manpower, materials, and machinery through smarter planning, digital integration, and streamlined workflows. We are focused on making our processes more responsive, efficient, and adaptable to the evolving demands of the construction industry.

Technology adoption will be another key growth driver. We are increasingly exploring advanced construction methodologies such as prefabrication and modular construction techniques, which help reduce on-site work, improve quality consistency, enhance safety, and accelerate project delivery.

As India's urban and infrastructure development gathers pace, we aim to further strengthen Capacit'e's position as one of the country's most trusted construction partners, recognized for engineering excellence, execution capability, and the ability to deliver landmark projects across sectors.

Q. Looking at your current project portfolio, which sectors or project categories are emerging as the strongest growth drivers for the company, and where do you see the most promising opportunities ahead?

Capacit'e has established itself as one of India's leading construction companies in the super high-rise and high-rise residential segment, which continues to be a strong contributor to our growth. Over the years, we have also successfully executed a diverse range of projects, including hospitals, integrated townships, and design-and-build developments.

Looking ahead, we see significant opportunities emerging from India's rapid urbanization, digital transformation, and industrial expansion. While residential construction will remain an important part of our portfolio, our next phase of growth will be driven by increased participation in institutional buildings, data centres, industrial facilities, and commercial developments.

These segments offer substantial long-term potential and align well with our execution capabilities, technical expertise, and commitment to delivering complex projects with precision and reliability.

COVER STORY

The Possibility of Price Rise

Industry players have so far absorbed a significant portion of cost-escalation pressures to maintain sales momentum and minimise shocks to the consumption economy. However, if geopolitical disruptions and external shocks continue, Dr Niranjan Hiranandani, Chairman, NAREDCO, says we may see the pressure percolate down to consumers.

"The ability to pass on costs will vary across segments and markets," he avers. "Premium and luxury markets, with stronger pricing power and limited supply, may absorb price increases more readily. In contrast, affordable and lower mid-income segments remain highly price-sensitive, limiting developers' flexibility despite rising construction costs. The price elasticity equation will be determined by project viability, financial discipline and operational efficiencies."

short-term cyclical factors."

However, buyer sentiment in more recent times has been impacted by global headwinds as well the runaway price growth across major cities, points out Karan Singh Sodi, Senior Managing Director - Mumbai MMR & Gujarat and Head - Alternatives, India, JLL. "Besides, the residential product itself is now geared towards the premium category and hence the mid-segment buyer seems to be priced out of some markets."

Interestingly, Bengaluru and Hyderabad are still growing because they are more end-user-driven. Witnessing less speculative activity, Zia explains, means they neither see very high price movements nor as many investors as, say, NCR.

Boundary extender

Among the many factors that fuel real-estate growth, especially the ongoing cycle, Hiranandani lists a growing GDP, stable interest rates, the availability of home loans, mega infrastructure projects to unlock hinterlands, last-mile connectivity, redevelopment with better FSI, rapid urbanisation-led migration, NRI influx into premium housing markets, and FII investments flowing into Grade A commercial, retail and logistics assets.

In particular, better urban mobility through improved connectivity infrastructure has been a game-changer not just for extending development boundaries and transforming previously overlooked zones into high-growth hotspots but also for creating new realty cycles.

"Meaningful and durable progress in strengthening regulatory frameworks can happen only with deeper collaboration."

Subir Malhotra, Whole Time Director, Capacit'e Infraprojects

Real-estate momentum is increasingly tied to infrastructure, accessibility and end-user demand rather than speculation alone.

"Whereas historically, real-estate appreciation was concentrated within core urban zones," Hiranandani notes, "today, infrastructure is decentralising growth and creating entirely new residential and commercial corridors across tier cities."

"Infrastructure is not just extending growth; it's redrawing city boundaries," says Desu. "As connectivity improves, what were once peripheral locations are becoming prime corridors and new micro-markets are being unlocked."

For instance, Mumbai's suburbs, Navi Mumbai, Thane and even the city centre are in the midst of an unprecedented infrastructure

Jammu Tawi: Capacit'e Infraprojects Limited has released 35.50 lakh pledged promoter shares, representing around 13.2 per cent of the promoter and promoter group's shareholding, in a move aimed at strengthening its financial profile and capital structure. According to the company, 25.50 lakh shares were released from pledge in June 2026 by the promoter and promoter group, while another promoter group entity released an additional 10 lakh shares in May 2026.

The company said the reduction in pledged shares reflects its improving financial position, prudent capital management and commitment to long-term value creation. Supported by a strong order book, execution capabilities and positive growth prospects, Capacit'e Infraprojects expects to benefit from opportunities in India's expanding infrastructure and construction sector.
